RE: UNAUTHORIZED USE OF THE MKR GROUP PROPERTY

Dear Mr. Tanaka:

We are writing to you on behalf of The MKR Group, Inc., the exclusive owner of the copyright, trademark, and other intellectual property rights in and to the motion picture "George A. Romero's Dawn of the Dead." Among other things, these rights include images, scenes and settings contained in the movie, and the rights are protected under both the United States Copyright Act and the Lanham Act.

We serve as the exclusive licensing and merchandising agent for the exploitation of these rights and recently learned that Capcom is developing a video game entitled "Dead Rising" that makes unauthorized and repeated use of the copyrighted and trademarked rights belonging to The MKR Group. In fact, recent public announcements for this game recognize the striking similarities between images, scenes and settings in the game and those in the movie. After looking at some of the images in the game side-by-side with images from the movie (two of several examples of which are attached), we understand that perception. Furthermore, we understand that a representative of Capcom, Tony Pereira, inquired about obtaining rights to Dawn of the Dead in April 2004 and was told that the rights were available for license but that Capcom did not secure any such rights.

If Capcom wishes to license these rights and resolve this issue amicably, please contact us before March 24, 2006. New Line diligently enforces its and The MKR Group's rights in all
