I suppose if you were to release me, I may refrain from destroying you... this time.

Underestimating your opponent.

Charging overconfidently into battle with a new foe.

All Raymonds make these errors.

It is your predictable behavior that made you an ideal target.

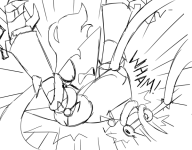

Along with your... relationship with Radicles.

... Your opinion on the matter is noted, though irrelevant.

Author's Note

Hello again! Thank you for reading Hubris Debris. This was a bit of a departure from my usual doujinshis--for instance, I didn't do any planning whatsoever for this project, and I invented every part of the story on the fly (though I've had this concept in my head for years). Also, it hardly stars Raymond at all! Quite unfair, if you ask me.

I hope you enjoyed it! It was nice to just churn out a comic without worrying about polish, for once. I haven't done that since Error Terror. As an aside, this project took 4 days, from start to finish. wrist falls off

I had a lot of fun (and difficulty) writing Dendy and Rad! They're not characters I explore very often. I'm a little embarrassed about my Radicles characterization, specifically, purely because it's so indulgent. Please forgive me...

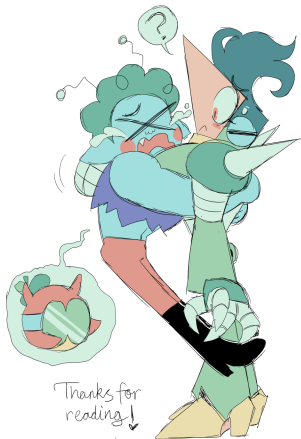

I'm also grateful for all of my friends who supported me as I worked on this endeavor! You know who you are.
