

As much as I hate that I'm writing anything to twitter of all places, as well as in this condition, I feel like it's only right if I were to post my side of things, not to save my own ass but to hopefully lessen certain thoughts of me as although I did some REALLY REALLY dumb shit and said some disgusting things, I am not a predator nor am I a pedo or groomer or anything. My need for not being abandoned and people pleasing, doing whatever I can to make my friends happy, took a bad turn and I pushed it too far to the point of a mistake that I'm aware I can't take back.

I'd like to first apologize for the things I've said to the people who had to read the screenshots. It was disgusting and whether it was asked for or not, as well as minor or not, it's not something I should have partook in nor ever said no matter the circumstances. On the other side of things certain things are being wildly taken out of context and I cannot stand by to be portrayed as something I'm not. To begin with, the screenshot of me asking Collie to not post about me...Collie randomly during the very beginning of our friendship would randomly make tweets @ing me with random things such as saying hi or just keyboard mashing but it was many times all at once. I asked to not be tweeted about because I found it extremely weird and clingy, being that we knew each other less than a week and being that people already found it weird. At this time we barely knew each other and had barely talked about anything other than smash and life, but concerned that people would think something else of our friendship or it be seen as flirting as she does very commonly publicly on twitter, I asked to not be posted since I wanted nothing to do with that in our friendship. I tried making this very clear by saying that I didn't want her getting the wrong idea. Looking at it now I 1 Million percent should have took that as my sign to stop talking to her even as Leafy warned me to not get caught up in her stuff as apparently she has "victim baited" before as i've been told by multiple people now.

At this point it became a thing of I definitely should have stopped talking to her and likely should have blocked or something but I was genuinely concerned for her well being being that the messages took place around the time one of my best friends committed suicide and I was not allowing myself to lose another person to it.

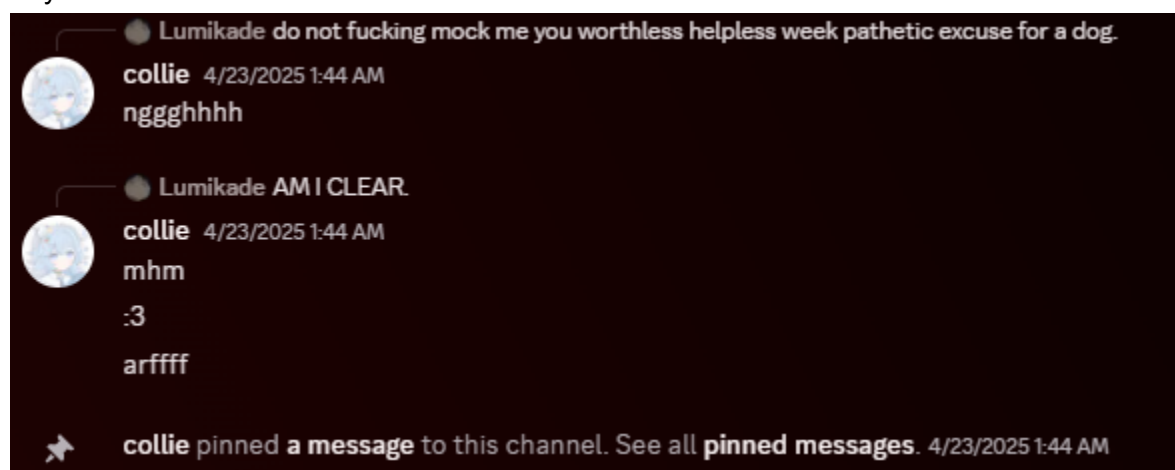

things like this should have just told me that she was clearly mentally unstable and should have reported something but it just wasn't clear in my mind at the time.

I really do not know when but all of this led to me doing whatever I could to make her happy or whatever just... wouldn't lead to her cutting or at least not often. Somehow what ended up helping her not do that the most was me being... mean to her. Sounds very very contradictory but I just went along with it in an attempt to keep her around, scared of abandonment of another friend and also not wanting her to go off the edge. Very very stupid but it's nothing I can take back now.

What very clearly looks like something of her just wanting me to say the worst things possible, so she could save them for exposing I'd assume, at the time was just me trying to do what was asked with being more and more mean which I wasn't very comfortable with, being that I just generally find it hard to be mean to people, but ended up doing anyways and I just took it way way farther than I realized at the time.

Most of these chat's being so late that I was just saying things half asleep but again that is not an excuse for that was said.

As the adult I should have known better, that no matter if asked or not, Collie was a minor and talking like that to someone in any sense of the word is just... not okay, no matter the age, older or younger than me. I can admit the things I said were very weird and some just straight up disgusting but at no point did I say anything in an attempt to manipulate, and most definitely not in thoughts of any sort of attraction or desire to be with a minor sexually or romantically. I made a really really dumb decision trying to be the people pleaser I am with everyone and I can take full responsibility for that because at my age I should know better. I am making this because I am not the terrible person that is being made out to be and I don't like how escalated things got for out of context screenshots with little to no words to go with it. I understand what I did was wrong and I know that I shouldn't talk with anyone how I did with her ever again. I also need to learn to put my foot down and say no to things I don't agree with, but that is for future interactions as this will not be happening ever again. For any TO's reading this it is on your full discretion on whether or not you want me to be at your events, the smash community is supposed to be a safe and fun place for people of all ages and if you feel like I am a danger to the scene I am not one to go against that. For the time being I will not be going to events, and taking a step back as I understand that actions have consequences. I do not think that Collie is stable and in this situation I do not believe either of us are in the right. I did not manipulate ever and although minors cant consent as she is saying, it is very very clear she knew what she was doing, cropping screenshots how she did and things of that nature. A minor who drinks, smokes, fantasizes about abuse, and other things of that nature is someone who needs genuine help and I hope she gets it. I have not and will not ever have sexual or romantic feelings towards a minor. I just said some really really dumb weird and disgusting things to keep a friend and that was the dumbest mistake I could've ever made. I do not expect forgiveness for the things I said but I do want people to know that I am not some evil pedo monster that I am being made out to be. I will be deleting all of my dms with her so that more out of context screenshots can't be posted. I have admitted to my mistakes and it has already been shown that I've said some odd things so there is no reason to believe I'm hiding things by deleting said messages. I'd like to get past this and if anyone wants to contact me they may. Thank you for reading.
