

Dear Mr. President Trump,
10 July 2019

Inside the protected zone there is an unwell man aggressively seeking a prostitute. I report him to the Secret Service. I am positively identified by the officers as the complainant and my oral statement is given.

25 June 2019

I personally stop an assault and theft in the intersection of 18th St NW and Pennsylvania Ave NW. I trail the suspect to the protected area between the Executive Offices, enabling Secret Service to ID and apprehend him. My sworn statement is on file.

16 June 2019

I nonviolently de-escalate a domestic dispute. The encounter ends in the McDonald's at 1235 New York Ave NW, and will be clearly visible on the security camera footage.

4 June 2019

I arrive in Washington, DC. I am homeless and unemployed. I take up nightly residence on a bench in the SW quadrant of Lafayette Square. Many of the Secret Service officers come to know me.

9 December 2014

I am convicted in a general court martial and imprisoned for a crime I did not commit, a crime I reported, a crime I took great pains to rectify.

Mr. President Trump, I request an audience to discuss pardon. The technical and constitutional violations of the case are mind-boggling - but are not the most important aspect, which is:

I am innocent.

I am excommunicated from society; yet still I help; yet still I protect; yet still I soldier.

This verifiable timeline shows the strength of my principle, the unbreakable foundation of my moral character. It commands attention.

Please help this wounded soldier.

Respectfully,
---Jason Close
