I just finished building a brand-new machine!

What's it d—

So glad you asked! It's a molecule designed to target biomass accumulation, cellular senescence and aggregation, autophagy, it's really quite fascinating. I wrote some textbooks on the subject like... Cellular Senescence, but I've also written Cellular Senescence: Genetic Drivers and Therapeutic Targets. If you ask me, it's a bit of a... at least as...

—and your robotic brain should be impervious to the effects, so really, there's nothing to worry about! Honestly!

W-wait, what!? Hang on a sec—

Author's Note

Hello again! Thanks so much for reading Refactor Disaster! MLaaTR was an extremely influential show for me growing up, and I've actually had this premise in my head for a bit over a year now...

I had a ton of fun making it. Oh god. I just realized it only took me 14 days. OOPS...

I still really love how Elysium, my previous work, turned out— but I also really missed coming up with gags and goofs. This was refreshing to work on, as a result.

I wanted to make this project in the first place because... most people seem to know who Jenny is, but not Smytus or Silver Shell. And I think they're very sexy, and that there should be more porn of them. So, this is kind of my love letter to them. Brad was going to feature more prominently, because I also ship him with Jenny, but I realized I don't actually enjoy drawing him despite liking him and his design overall... sorry, Brad!

Also, for the record, this story takes place before the events of the movie (Escape from Cluster Prime). I think that's my favorite time period to play around in, because I love the Cluster in general.

I really enjoyed studying and dissecting the cartoon's art style for this comic. Aesthetically, it's my absolute favorite, and I still feel magnificently outclassed by it... trying to find a nice middle ground between my natural style and the show's was an interesting challenge throughout.

I couldn't have made it through this project without my friends offering support, advice, and relentless enthusiasm along the way.

Also, thanks so much for the guest art, @DogmaLord! Isn't it charming? That episode ("Sister Sledgehammer") is practically already an ero-doujinshi on its own...

Well, that's all for now! Please don't redistribute or re-upload this project (or any of my other comics) elsewhere. And as always, you can find me on Twitter and Baraag as @teebnslw and @teeb Sly.

Thanks, I love you! Bye!
