Is it fucked up to call someone out for being stupid... am I a bully because people are blatantly fucking idiots? I'd like to think not, but I mean... FB rejected me because people don't like the truth, twitter welcomed me with open arms.

I'm not asking anybody to say thank you, but I will not let myself be disrespected by an apologist or a god damn singlet/ endo/ tulpa. All of which disgust me. I am working hard af to bring justice to the community. This is how you take back control.

I don't give a shit who disagrees with me, ever since this Twitter battle went down I've gained followers. I had two people private message me telling me what a fucking condescending asshole you are and how they've had to delete you before. So I know my place, know yours.

Nobody's my punching bag. It's not my fault people are fucking idiots on the Internet, and don't think before they fucking post bullshit that is spreading stigma about my dissociative disorder. I will talk how are the fuck I want to talk and you're going to deal with it.

It's not just @DissociaDID. I'm going to have all crooked DIDtubers exposed. If you are a respectable person, and you make content that's not click bait or emotional manipulation you have no reason to fear me. In fact I am one of the most loving and open minded people you'll meet

The community needs a voice that doesn't take shit from anyone. I'm not here to make nice, I'm here to make a statement. Everyone is too afraid of offending people. Do you want malingerers?! bc that is how we get malingerers. If you're afraid of me you have a good reason to be.

You have a right to say anything that you want, just like I have a right to say what I want. It's just how the world works. If somebody chooses to engage in a debate with me, about some thing that I am passionate about... and continues to trigger me that's not my fault. I'm mean.
